PODGORICA

Podgorica became the capital of Montenegro in 1945. Not only are the Government and Parliament located here, but the town is also an economic, cultural, social, educational and sports center with important faculties of the university and theaters. Many companies have located their headquarters in Podgorica. To fulfill all these demands it was necessary to rebuild the town, which was completely destroyed in World War II, and very quickly. For many it happened too quickly. Almost nothing reminds one of the old Podgorica.

Podgorica was founded more than 2000 years ago. Even today one can still follow the footsteps of the Romans, who built the town of Doclea here.

While Doclea served as the headquarters for the Emperor of the Prevalis province, Byrziminium, just a few kilometers south, had more the character of a trading post.

During the 9th century immigrant Slavs came into power in the region. They founded the town and state of Duklja in the area of Byrziminium. In their Golden Age they were ruling over the Zeta and Moraca valleys, the region around Lake Skadar and parts of the coast. The Turks turned Podgorica, which was its name since 1474, into a real fortress. They stayed until 1879. In 1946, after the creation of Yugoslavia, the town was named Titograd. In 1992 it got its old name back, Podgorica.

The modern sport in Podgorica starts its development during the last years nineteenth century, as natural continuance of traditional games such as throwing weight, shooting and flying and standing jump. The very first competitions as well as the building sport's ground initiated development in a period when Montenegro principality. Since the time of establishing first sport organizations till now, sport in Podgorica gathers many young people. These organizations gave us the great number of talented individuals who represented Podgorica in Europe and worldwide. Soccer, basketball, volleyball, handball, karate and boxing honored Podgorica's sport here and abroad. Current champions of Serbia and Montenegro are our men team in volleyball and women team in handball, and our basketball club played play-off this year. Last year we reached the highest result of Montenegrin sport ever. Namely, The Karate Klub "Buducnost" became the equip champions of Europe. Besides, they also were Yugoslav champions for 13 times.

Sincenow, many significant sport events were organized in Podgorica:

- First Mediterranean Karate Championship, 1987;
- Senior Karate European Championship 1989, etc.
- 1st European university karate championship 2003.
- 12th Mediterranean karate championship 2003.
- 33rd European karate championship cadet and juniors 2006.

Podgorica was organizer and host for one qualification group of European Basketball Championship in 2005.
